BASEBALL DIAMOND PUZZLES STUDENTS

(By Dudley Porter.)

When the original designers of a baseball diamond made the distance between the bases ninety feet they put a problem to the coming generation that for forty years has puzzled the brains of the greatest students of the national game.

And it appears that these men have about reached the limit of their genius, despite the fact that Charley Ehlers of Brooklyn says the game is still in its infancy.

The pioneers of the game of baseball little knew on what fine lines they were figuring when they fixed the distance between the bases. The distance was based on their calculations as to how long it would take a batted ball to be fielded and thrown to first base.

The speed of the runner was also taken into consideration. The accuracy of their calculations is proved by the fact that they have not been changed one iota since the first game was played by the old Knickerbockers on the greens around New York.

As the runners developed in speed the fielding developed with them and the base of contention—ninety feet—is yet beyond the possession of either party to the struggle.

Every year some inventive genius discovers a move by which either distance or speed can be overcome, but as fast as they execute their plan the other side formulates a plan of defense and offsets it. While first base is the initial objective point of all baseball endeavor, it is merely the basis for future calculations. The showing of men around the bases is what tangles the brains of the thinkers. The sacrifice hit was first invented to advance a man even at the cost of putting a man out, but the defensive side of the game came right back with schemes to kill the sacrifice.

The players have become so accurate in making everyday plays that the thinker can calculate accurately on just what they are going to do under ordinary circumstances. He then sets about to create an extraordinary circumstance when as a rule is effective until it becomes no longer extraordinary through familiarity with its workings.

During the past twenty years the game has brought out many geniuses, these who stand out prominently are John McGraw, Johnny Evers, Frank Chance, Tommy Leach, Hugh Jennings, Ty Cobb, Connie Mack, Joe McGinnity, Jack Dunn and Sammy Strang.

The latter three are out of the big league now, but some of the plays they planned and executed will be remembered for many years to come. Sammy Strang is generally credited with having originated the "delayed steal," which is one of the prettiest plays in the game.

"RED" TONER GAVE FEW HITS
Red Toner administered a sleeping potion to the Salt Lake team at the fair grounds yesterday afternoon and turned what looked like a wide open game into a pitiless massacre of the two belligerent tailenders. The score finished 11 to 5. The contest started with Little, a try-out twirler from the Lake, in the box. In the first and fourth the new man permitted too many festivities with the ball and the more dependable Toner climbed upon the mound.

Toner was assisted by Helmle, a steam shoveler, who catches like a hay rack and apparently needs oiling in his major joints, but nevertheless he received without an error and got one hit. His throws to second and first were superior to Lumley's work and it is believed that with some practice and grease Helmle will make a valuable adjunct to the local team.

Wessler was wearing his batting clothes and in the fifth drove the sphere to such a remote corner of left field that he peddled all the way around—the first and only actual home run of the season. The drive brought in Lawrence, who was trotting on second. In the same spectacular round Glimin came near putting a ringer on Wessler's effort, but was forced to pause at third, much to the dismay of the fans who would like to have seen the game broken up right there.

During the practice Ogden fans offered to bet two to one on the local team's chances, but very little Salt Lake money was forthcoming at any odds. The visitors started things in the first with a vim and vigor that caused some of the bugs to blink their eyes and wonder if the Salt Lake team was coming back. At the end of the fourth the visitors had four tallies and Ogden lagged behind with three.

When Toner took things in hand the Salt Lake team did not make a bit until the ninth. For five rounds the maroon topped twirler held the visitors to two hits, one of which was a scratch, and he struck out six men. On the five runs which the Lakers had to their credit, Donovan made three of them and the game player took two two-bag hits from Ogden.

In the second inning Glimin was on third and Bluth at bat, when the latter was handed a cue to bunt. Pad left his post when the ball left the pitcher's mitt, risking all on Bluth's ability to make good. The batter laid the ball neatly in the diamond about ten feet from the plate and Glimin scored. The sacrifice gave up his position, but the ball left the pitcher's home run was not his only work with the stick during the game, as in the eighth he pushed one to short that bounded off the short-stop's plin and let two runs slide through.

The game was umpired by Mead, who Saturday fined Black of the Occidentals five dollars for his iron jaw work. There was no kicking to speak of on Mead's decisions and throughout the performance was more devoid of rag-chewing than any contest for several weeks.

gigantic fortifications, is of vast extent and although a large portion is in ruins, the grandeur of its architecture is at once apparent. On the north and west sides the walls overlook steep precipices, while around the remainder of the castle a deep moat still exists and over which one passes by means of a draw bridge to enter the massive gateway guarded by its various towers and replete with inner gates, a portcullis and other medieval arrangements for defense.

Around the extensive courtyard are the principal buildings of the castle, including the Emperor's hall, palace of Frederick IV, Ludwig's castle, the great casement, the Octagon tower, and the pride of the ruins, the magnificent Otto-Heinrichsbau done in the early, German renaissance style of architecture.

To the left one may pass under the "Old Chapel" to the ancient wine cellars, in one room of which stands the "great tun," the largest barrel in the world. It is said to hold 49,000 gallons and is so large that a dance platform has been constructed on top of it large enough to accommodate a considerable number of people. In front of the big tun is a wooden statue of the dwarfed Perkeo, King Philip's court jester, who is said to have been accustomed to drinking from 15 to 18 bottles of strong wine daily.

One can also visit the barracks, the castle dungeons, the arsenal and the royal kitchens with their massive culinary equipment, ovens, etc., designed for furnishing food for the entire population of the fortress. The art gallery and museum also contain much that is interesting, including paintings, engravings, manuscripts, coins, weapons, Roman monuments, etc.

The castle was besieged and taken many times in its history and on several occasions was entirely or partially destroyed. In 1720 the last restoration was made to provide a residence for King Philip, but in 1764 it was struck by lightning and the walls of the interior became a prey to the flames. Since that time little has been done except to preserve as far as possible what remains.

GREAT TRACK MEET TO BE IN NEW ORLEANS

(By Hal Dexter.)

What promises to be the greatest and most representative championship track meet that was ever held in this country is the one which will take place at New Orleans on October 14 and 15.

For the first time in the history of the sport and championship meet has been awarded to a city in the far south and all of its northerners are wondering what the ultimate effect will be on southern athletics. The athletic association of that city are sparing no pains to make the event a huge success.

In former years when the national championship events were held in the east, very few clubs, outside of New York and New England contingent competed. At this year's meet entries have been assured from every section of the country and San Francisco will have as many athletes at the games as New York and Boston.

The opening gun in the campaign for entries was fired when James E. Sullivan sent out the official entry blanks for the games. The meet will be held on the Tulane University athletic field, which is being put into shape by the committee in preparation for the big races. All of the modern improvements will be installed, so that there will be no kick coming from any of the visiting athletes.

The Southern Association has decided to give the $700 which was raised to help perfect arrangements to the national body to distribute among the clubs throughout the country that will send athletes worthy of consideration to the games. This committee is made up of men from New York, Boston and Chicago and representatives of other associations.

A strong team is being mustered by the Chicago A. A. which will include such stars as Craig, the Michigan flyer, Horner of the same school, Johnny Carrels, Frank Irons, Spider Coe and others of like note.

OGDEN BOY IS AT HEIDELBERG

Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Heywood received an interesting letter Saturday from their son, John Heywood, who is touring Europe with a party of school friends from the University of Virginia.

The party has been visiting Heidelberg, the famous old university town of Germany, and had spent a number of days in viewing the many points of interest in and around the city.

In commenting on the more interesting sights of Heidelberg, which was founded by the Romans in the first century after Christ, the young man states that the old Schloss or castle overlooking the Neckar from the heights of the Pfaffenberg is without doubt one of the most interesting remains of mediæval architecture to be found in all Europe.

"To ascend the Konigsstuhl," he writes, "and look down on this picturesque old ruin and contemplate the scenes of action, bloodshed and revolution which have marked its history for more than 600 years fills one with a feeling difficult to describe."

The original castle or rather the fortress for it includes numerous stone towers, chapels, palaces and other large structures encircled by

PROFESSOR SHAW TO JUDGE SHEEP

Manager H. M. Rowe of the Fair association has received word from Acting Secretary W. H. Hays of the department of agriculture, to the effect that Professor L. Shaw, in charge of the department of animal industry in the bureau of animal industry, department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., will attend the International Sheep Show to be held at Ogden, September 23 to 29, and will act as official judge of the sheep exhibits.

Professor Shaw is one of the best known sheep experts in the world and has judged sheep in all parts of the United States, as well as at exhibits in foreign exhibitions.

The interest in the approaching fair and sheep show is spreading rapidly over the country and exhibits and visitors will be here from all parts of America. The securing of Professor Shaw as official judge of sheep will add much to the importance attributed to the show, especially to those who contemplate placing sheep on exhibition, as his expert knowledge and unquestioned fairness will ensure a fair deal to all.

VISITED FAMOUS "ORIGINAL" MINE

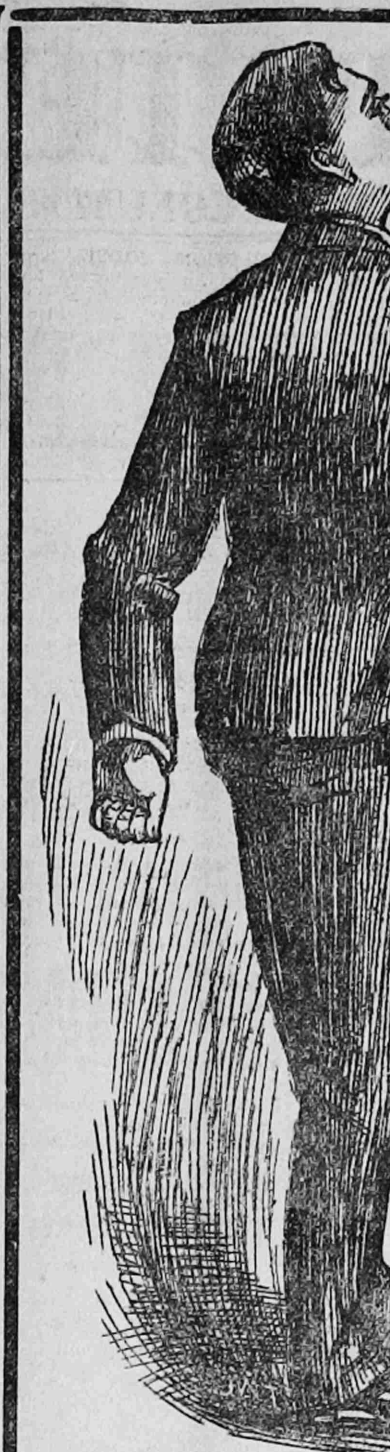

Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Tyrore returned yesterday from a two weeks' camping at Spencer, Idaho. They also visited Butte for a few days in company with Mr. and Mrs. Will Robertson of Ogden, who are also camping at Spencer.

While in Butte the party visited the famous "Original" copper mine and through the courtesy of the management were taken on a trip of inspection through its principal workings.

They descended the main shaft to a depth of 2,800 feet, where the heat was oppressive and the extreme dampness affected the ears of those not accustomed to delving in the bowels of the earth.

PETITION FOR LETTERS OF GUARDIANSHIP

Mrs. Olive Ethel Stephens has asked the district court to appoint John A. Junk as guardian of her son, Murlin Herbert Stephens, aged four years. Mrs. Stephens is a widow and her husband at his death left considerable property to the child. Real estate in Ogden left to the child is valued at $1,250. The boy is now in custody of the mother who resides at 2971 Adams avenue.

RILEY GETS NEW LEASE OF LIFE

SALT LAKE, Aug. 21.—While the state board of pardons was considering the petition of Harry Thorne at the state prison yesterday, James D. Pardee, attorney for Thomas Riley, was making a motion before Judge George G. Armstrong in the district court asking for an extension of sixty days' time in which to serve and file a bill of exceptions. This motion was granted and there will be no double execution September 9.

In any event, yesterday's action in the case will give Riley a few months more on earth, inasmuch as the sixty days' extension will not expire until more than a month after the date originally set for the execution. Then, as the case is to go to the supreme court, it will mean another month or more before it is known whether a new trial will be granted. In case a new trial should be ordered, Riley has a possible chance of getting off with a life sentence. This chance, however, is regarded as extremely remote.

Gives Change of Venue.
Riley, in company with Harry Thorne and "Curley" Morgan, killed George W. Fassell, a grocer, while they were robbing Fassell's store on the night of March 26, 1910. Both Riley and Thorne were arrested the same night, and both confessed to the murder, the confession of Harry Thorne being signed.

Riley entered a plea of not guilty April 12, and his trial began June 13. On account of delays when Judge T. D. Lewis suggested that the attorney for Riley apply for a change of venue because the confession of Harry Thorne had been published in the Herald Republican, the trial of Riley was postponed two weeks, and it was not until June 25 that a verdict of guilty was rendered.

Thorne Shot September 9.
Time for passing sentence was first fixed for July 8, and then continued until July 20, and again continued until July 23, when, after a motion for a new trial was denied, Riley was sentenced to be shot September 9. On July 20, James D. Pardee, attorney for Riley, was allowed an extension of twenty days in which to prepare and file a bill of exceptions. At this time the court reporter was ordered to transcribe the proceedings at the expense of the state preparatory to an appeal to the supreme court.

Harry Thorne was sentenced to be shot for the same crime on July 15, with the execution to be on the day set for Riley's death and, according to the decision of the state board of pardons yesterday, Thorne will pay the penalty September 9.

POSTPONE HEARING ON HARRY THORNE

SALT LAKE, Aug. 21.—At the meeting of the state board of pardons at the state penitentiary Saturday the petition of Harry Thorne, who was sentenced to be shot to death on September 9 for killing George W. Fassell, was brought up for discussion. After a long hearing the board postponed action on his sentence until September 9, at 10 o'clock, at the state prison, when it will be discussed again.

At the time of the hearing Thorne displayed little concern as to his fate. After he received his sentence, how-

WOMAN DIES ON DANCE FLOOR

SALT LAKE, Aug. 21.—After she had enjoyed a short dance at the Saltair pavilion early yesterday afternoon Mrs. Nellie J. McMahon, secretary to Captain William Summer-ville, superintendent of the soldiers' home at Quincy, Ill., suffered a stroke of heart failure and died almost in the arms of her partner, Mrs. J. E. Dillon of East St. Louis, Ill. Mrs. McMahon was a widow in her thirty-seventh year. She had been secretary to Captain Summer-ville for a period of eight years and was well known in G. A. R. circles of Illinois.

Accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Dillon of East St. Louis, and Dr. C. E. Ehle, chief surgeon of the soldiers' home at Quincy, Mrs. McMahon came to Salt Lake several days ago to enjoy a two weeks' vacation. Yesterday they went to Saltair. Mrs. McMahon began to enquire over the magnificent dance floor and induced Mrs. Dillon to accompany her in an informal waltz. The dance had just finished when Mrs. McMahon fell backward and died.

Several Catholic nuns were in attendance at Saltair and one of them administered extreme unction as Mrs. McMahon, of Catholic faith, was dying. A speedy examination of the cause for death by Dr. Ehle revealed it to be heart disease. The body was removed to the mortuary of the O'Donnell Undertaking company. It will be shipped to Beardstown, Ill., the former home of the dead woman, for burial today.

DRUNKEN ITALIAN RUNS AMUCK

MARTINEZ, Cal., Aug. 21.—Endeavoring to protect himself and others in the house from death or serious injury, Spelsina Billeci, an Italian fisherman, shot and killed his brother, Joseph Billeci, last night, when the latter ran amuck with a knife and a revolver among a number of family members in the home of Mrs. Margaret Bruno at Crockett. Many shots were fired at each other by the brothers and during the fusillade Rosie Billeci, the one-year-old niece of the combatants, was struck in the forehead by a bullet and instantly killed.

Joseph Billeci, who had been drinking, became quarrelsome and when his brother remonstrated with him he drew a knife. In the struggle Spelsina and Mrs. Bruno were badly cut. Joseph drew a revolver and began firing. Spelsina returned the fire and Joseph fell instantly killed. A stray shot fired by Spelsina struck the little girl. Both Spelsina and Mrs. Bruno may die from their wounds.

Scratch a Match and Turn the Value

It is a true axiom that nothing is perfect until it is simple. All our men of middle life will remember the old powder-horn, cap-box and shot pouch; how cumbersome and slow it was when loading the old-fashioned shotgun. But now it is different, the cap, powder and shot are all in one shell.

How unpleasant it must have been for Martha Washington and all the ladies of her day to cook in the old fire place with its dutch oven and spit. If time could only be unrolled and bring them back to life again, how pleased they would be to work in one of our modern kitchens where gas is used. It would be like a dream to them until they could be convinced of its reality.

One lady says, "I would not sell my gas stove if I could not get another." An engineer on the Short Line says, "I cook my breakfast since I put in the gas, but it is too quick for me—it gets things ready before I can get dressed."

Gas is the thing all right, try it.
